Three Hurt in Bus Accident

West Memphis, Dec. 24 (AP)—Three men were hurt when a truck and a Greyhound bus collided a few miles west of the Mississippi river bridge near here yesterday.

The injured: M. M. Davis and Jack Davis, both of Lepanto, Ark., and R. C. Miller of Truman, Ark. All three were taken to a Memphis hospital. They were riding in the truck. There were no passengers in the bus.

The company said the bus, driven by W. T. Harris of Pine Bluff, Ark., was "dead-heading" from Memphis back to Pine Bluff. State Patrolman Bill Reed said apparently the truck pulled onto highway 70 in front of the bus.

Arkansas, where he received his early education. He received his A. B. degree from Ouachita College in 1907 and was granted an Honorary J. L. B. degree by Ouachita College in 1937. He took his graduate degree from the University of Oklahoma and Columbia University, with graduate study in Europe.

Dr. Bennett's career as an educator, one that has taken him to the ranks of America's outstanding leaders, started in Hugo, Oklahoma, Choctaw county.

He served Hugo and Choctaw counties as county and city school superintendent from 1907-1918; became president of Southeastern State Teachers' College, Durant, 1918-29 and became president of the Oklahoma Agricultural and Mechanical College in 1929. He has served 33 cumulative years as a college president.

During his presidency at Oklahoma A. & M. College, the student body has grown from some 3,800 to peak enrollments of 13,000. The college valuation has risen from $3,500,000 to $60,000,000. Through Dr. Bennett's planning some $11-600,000 of a $15,000,000 building program at A. & M. since 1947 has been achieved through self-liquidating bond issue transactions.

Dr. Bennett's planning has been removing the burden of college financing from state appropriations. The self-financing bond negotiations of 1947 were considered the largest ever transacted on a national college campus.

His distinguished several point program of "quality educational" opportunities for students accords both student and faculty research at highest levels; extension service; public services and resident teaching, providing top and requiring top level student production. His student self-help programs, providing ways for students to defray or help pay college costs has drawn down national study.

Through his efforts the pattern for the American Soils Conservation program was adopted by the USDA in the early thirties. He has fostered global relations until Oklahoma A. & M. draws one of the best foreign foreign registrations in the southwest. He encourages the use of the A. & M. campus as a regional, national and international convention site for educational, cultural and scientific groups. Under his auspices the college has gained the reputation for having one of the most democratic student bodies and a campus of opportunity and climatic.

Among his hobbies are the promotion of 4-H, FFA and other farm youth organizations. He played the way for the establishment of a Fire Service Training center at A.
& M. dubbed the West Point of American Fire Service; expanded law that she had told herself he was.

Joe spoke now. He was not averse to impressing Anne, but he knew when enough was enough if his father didn't.

"You've said more than a mouthful through this dinner, that's certain, Pop. My gosh! You've talked the whole time. But Anne is my girl. Remember? And I might have a few things I'd like to say to her myself. He stood and pulled Anne up after him. "Come on.
You're through. There's nothing more to hope for this meal." His face twinkled down into Anne's, its lazy good humor engaging.

"Oh! But—" It was Mrs. Melick. She began and then stopped and glanced uncertainly down the table toward her husband, whose half snorted, half barked, "But what?" proclaimed his scornful impatience of her. Of her unfinished sentences, of her timidity, of everything about her. He would have done better, he had often thought, to have dropped her cold by the wayside long ago. But he had been too busy then building up his business to interest himself in another woman, and he needed someone to manage his home and look after little Joe. Besides, if he ever got around to running for some political office a divorce wouldn't help him. And, finally, her mother, the late Mrs. Fehr, had been a personage with whom he would not be cared to do battle. She had been a tough old termagant who, though despising her daughter's meekness as he did, would nevertheless have taken up cudgels in her defense. She knew when their bread was well buttered! It had been Mrs. Fehr who had given the Crestwood place its importance, who had dominated the house and made herself felt in the church and the town. Not Louise. He had never understood how such a rough-looking character had produced the kind of daughter she did; it never occurred to him that the two of them together had made Louise what she was. He could hardly remember back now to the days when his wife had had sparkle and spirit. It seemed to him she had always been this way, a sorry apology of a woman to whom he had, perforce, stuck through the years, pleasuring himself with her chiefly through a mild sadism which took the form of belittling her whenever and wherever possible. But because old lady Fehr was dead and gone now, this house needed a new mistress.
Not one such as she had been, strident and forceful—and sharptongued, but someone gentler, with graces. A young woman who would be easy to look at and who would be easy to accept everywhere.
This girl, Anne, was exactly the ticket. Joe should marry her. —

Dr. Bennett was America's only agricultural college president pointed as a delegate to the postwar FAO assembly of UN inter-nationalists at Quebec, Canada in 1947, planning food rehabilitation for war-ravaged Europe. In the summer of 1949, he served as agricultural rehabilitation consultant in U. S. occupied Germany by appointment of the U. S. Army. In 1950 at the request of his Imperial Majesty Halle Selassie, he served that country in an advisory capacity on long range educational and agricultural planning.

Dr. Bennett, while still holding the presidency of the A. & M.

Davis Cup Guessing Game Is Still on

By GAYLE TALBOT

Sydney, Australia, Dec. 24 (AP)— The great Davis Cup guessing game went right down to the wire today as Frank Shields, captain of the American team, and four Australian players steadily refused to give any hint of the players they intend to use in the single matches of the challenge round.

American players themselves apparently will not know Shields' decision until the names are drawn from the tennis cup in a local hotel Christmas morning.

Australian selectors huddled with Harry Hopman, team captain, at White City late yesterday and reached an agreement on their side.

Shields, noting that Ken McGregor, later engaged in some special practice on his service, reached the conclusion that the Australian team to the American camp, as all have greater fear of the left-handed Mervyn Rose than of McGregor.

In fact, one of them said flatly, "They're plain saps if they don't play Rose."

By coincidence, Australia's players and officials alike, feel Shields' will make a fatal mistake if he fails to nominate Dick Savitt for the singles. Only thing for certain about the American side, though, is that Dick doesn't have a chance of getting a singles berth.

Shields obviously is enjoying his role of mystery man. He said he'd much rather be in a position of having the full responsibility of naming the team than that of Hopman, who can only offer suggestions.

Van Broklyn Leads Rams Over Browns

Los Angeles, Dec. 24 (AP)—Profootball's three master batters met in Memorial Coliseum Sunday, but two of them ranged up on the third. As a result, the Los Angeles Rams are the new champions of the National Football League.

It was just about a standoff between Otto Graham of Cleveland's Browns and Bob Waterfield of the Rams. Between them, they had fashioned a 17-17 tie in the waning minutes of a great ball game.

Then young Norman Van Broklyn, the Flying Dutchman from Oregon, took over from Waterfield.
And on one great toss, gathered in by Tommy Fears for a net gain of 73 yards, the Rams busted an long-standing jinx wide open and whipped the Browns 24-17.

It was the Rams' first victory over Cleveland in five tries, and their first championship since 1945 —although they have been in the playoff three years running.

The bruising clash left 39,475 spectators limp.

The payoff pitch was the big play of the day. Cleveland had just tied it up, and gave the tying Waterfield a rest. With the ball on his own 27-yard mark, the lanky quarterback dropped back. He had perfect protection as Fears' race d downfield, then veered toward the sideline.

Two Browns backs were waiting.
But Fears wasn't to be denied. He went into the air, took the ball away from both defenders, and came down at full speed. The goal was still nearly 40 yards away, but he made it without breaking stride.

The Rams tallied first, after a scoreless first quarter, fullback Dick Hocner going over from the one yard line after a 35-yard drive.

Long (The Toet Groza, the field goal kicking machine, had missed a beat in the first quarter, booting wide from 19 yards out. But from 52 yards away, he was high and true, and the count was 7-3.

It topped the previous record in a playoff game, 42 yards set jointly by Ward Cuff of the New York Giants in 1938 and tied the next year by Ernie Smith of Green Bay.

Graham put the favored visitors out in front by half-time with a sudden passing spurt. He hit three times in as many tries, the third for 17 yards and a touchdown to Dud Jones, and the teams left the field with Cleveland on top, 10-7.

But Graham was the victim as the Rams scored again. All day long, he was the target of Ram defensive ends Larry Brink and Andy Robustelli, and the fans often marveled that he got his tosses away at all. In the third quarter, he faded back with the ball on his own 33. Brink hit him hard, and the ball bounded away. Robustelli scopped it up, dropped it, got it again and went to within a yard of the goal before he was brought down. Deacon Dan Towler hit the line three times before he could get across.

In the fourth period, the Rams twice more got to the one-yard line. The first time they were held for four downs, the second for three. Then Waterfield kicked a field goal from the 18, and the Rams led, 17-10.

But Graham and gang came right back. Otto himself contributed a 34-yard gallop and Ken Carpenter went off tackle for a yard to tie the score and set the stage for Van Brockling and Fears.

The unpaid principal of the World War I debt owed the U. S. as of July 1, 1950 was $11,434,974,809.
